EYES EAST!

That is the order of the day! Eyes must now be turned toward the East in trade, in politics, in industry, in literature, in travel, in art!

The great awakening of the Orient is a paramount issue of the times, and to meet the increasingly important part that Asia is about to play in the world we must have a broad and quick knowledge of her countries.

The Encyclopedia AMERICANA offers a huge fund of Oriental information. Not just statistics, but vital, throbbing, important, up-to-date and gripping facts lead you over the long and alluring trail to the East.

The Great War has changed the heart and the face of Asia. Germany's dream of Asiatic dominion is over; Russia's influence has crumbled; the old order has changed in a hundred ways. Now—in finance, in commerce, in science—America's hand guides the unrest of the East. American locomotives shriek across Asiatic deserts. American teachers mould the young Oriental mind. American statesmanship is watched and copied.

To be in on all this—if only to understand what the world is talking about—it is necessary to widen one's knowledge of the East.

In the thirty volumes of the Americana, you will find among the 80,000 articles by more than 2,000 world-eminent specialists, that all Oriental subjects have been comprehensively handled in masterly style, so that a perusal of them constitutes an "open door" to the Far East.

A few minutes study each day—and another Continent is yours.

The Americana is as useful in the office as it is in the home or the college. In fact, as a part of the equipment for modern business, it is an absolute necessity.

Descriptive literature of the Encyclopedia Americana may be obtained by addressing the

ENCYCLOPEDIA AMERICANA CORPORATION

at 27 William Street, New York, or the Peoples Gas Building, Chicago, Ill.

THE H. R. HUNTING CO., Inc.
MYRICK BLDG SPRINGFIELD, MASS.HERE AND THERE*Vacation Time

H. A. L. Fisher, the British Minister of Education, who has been spoken of as a possible next ambassador to the United States, recently in an address to teachers laid down some rules to be observed in making the most of holidays and vacations. We quote a part of them which appeared in the Survey as they apply equally to librarians.

Plan your holiday carefully, but be ready to abandon your plans on the slightest provocation.

A change of work is in itself a holiday. Never drive when you can walk.

Take short cuts if you will, but remember there is seldom time for them.

A good holiday is like eternity—there is no reckoning of time.

One of the best fruits of a holiday is a new friendship.

The best holiday is that which contains the largest amount of new experiences.

In the choice of holiday books, act on the principle that one of the main uses of leisure is to feed the imagination.

The principal experts in the art of taking holidays are painters, naturalists, travelers, and historians; the worst person to consult is a golfer. (or a bridge-addict.—Ed.)

On occasions a very good holiday can be taken at home—if you change the hour of breakfast.

Who does not want to learn how to judge whether a book is "good" or "bad"? Such knowledge is too good not to pass on, so we reprint the following extract from Publishers' Weekly.

To Know Good Books From Bad

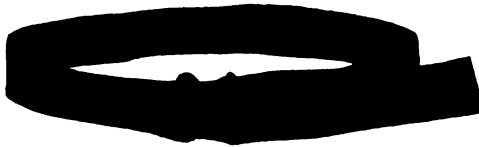

Asked by a correspondent what books of literary criticism would help him to understand the chief mark of good literature, to detect what is good and what is bad and to cultivate himself to read with deep, critical insight, May Lamberton Becker recommended the following course:

Compulsory Arbitration OF Industrial Disputes

LAMAR T. BEMAN, A.M., LL.B.

Because of the many requests for information on this subject, the 4th, revised and enlarged edition of the hand-book will be a worth while addition to the library.

It covers the two questions: Compulsory Arbitration and Compulsory Investigation of Industrial Disputes, because the two terms are confused so frequently and much of the literature relates to both.

The volume also contains briefs on both subjects, with a selection of the best material on both sides of each question, and a very full bibliography.

HERE AND THERE

"I know of no book that does more towards these results than a slender one, scarce more than pocket size, W. C. Brownell's Criticism (Scribner). It is divided into sections on field and function, equipment, criterion and method, and holds a course between old and new. Then I would read with care Joel Spingarn's Creative Criticism (Holt), a group of inspiring and provocative studies including one on dramatic criticism; and the last chapter of Professor Gertrude Buck's Social Criticism of Literature (Yale Press) on the function of the critic; all the book is good, but this part is especially pertinent. Then read Van Wyck Brooks's Letters and Leadership (Huebsch). Then get A Modern Book of Criticism, a volume in Boni & Liveright's Modern Library edited by Ludwig Lewisohn and see how these well-chosen examples of present-day criticism approach their subjects and deal with them.

I think you will be set further on your way by some such proceeding as this than by the study of a conventional textbook. If, however, you wish to begin with the details of style and composition, and it may be well not to take too much for granted, read C. S. Baldwin's Composition: Oral and Written (Longmans), which is good to clarify judgment as expression."

From Connecticut Schools, the bulletin published by the Connecticut State Board of Education, we take the following interesting account of an experiment in school library work.

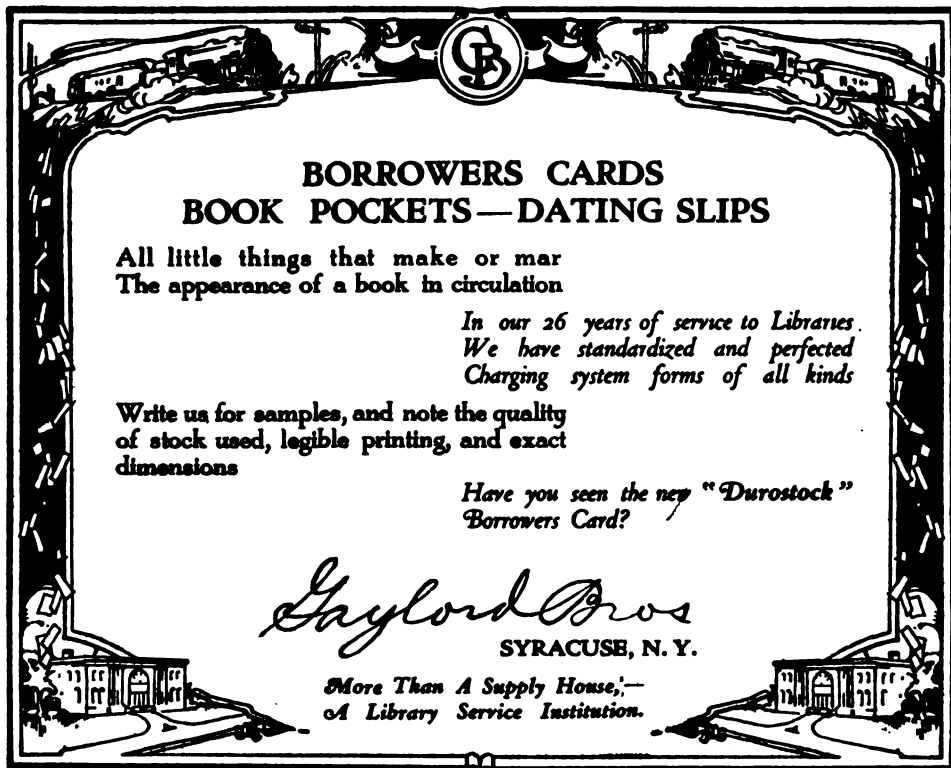

A Reading Project

By Mary J. O'Connor

Teacher in the Amston School,
Colchester

The pupils in the Amston school in Colchester have formed a School Library and Reading Club. The purpose of this project is to develop a desire to read good books and to start competition between the pupils so that they will read more books this year.

HERE AND THERE

The pupils held a meeting of the School Improvement Club and discussed the following:

1. How to raise money for a library fund.
2. How to get a new bookcase.
3. In what part of the room to place the bookcase, reading table, etc.
4. How to get magazines.
5. Methods of conducting a library, including the necessary rules.
6. Selection of desirable books.
7. Election of officers and their duties.
8. Appointment of a library committee to consult with the teacher in regard to the selection of books, and to visit the local library and consult the librarian about library methods.

The club has a librarian and an assistant who keep a record of the circulation each week and who are responsible for keeping the library in order and posting notices. The club meets once a week on Library Day, when members report on the books which they have read. A general meeting is to be held once a month to suggest and discuss new books and report on the most popular book for the preceding month.

One of the boys has promised to subscribe for three magazines suggested by the library committee and several pupils have promised to loan books.

As the pupils have assumed responsibility for selecting, organizing and maintaining the school library, a great interest has been aroused in its use. This opportunity of compiling a library brings the pupils in touch with a large amount of useful and interesting literature. They learn about authors and publishers and they acquire some knowledge of how a library is conducted. They are establishing good reading habits and right attitudes toward reading, besides getting a great fund of information from the books. There is opportunity for the exchange of ideas on the books read, the privilege of recommending books to each other and the exercise of judgment in the selection of books. It helps to make children resourceful, generally intelligent, and communicative about what they have read.

SELECTED ARTICLES ON IMMIGRATION

By EDITH M. PHELPS

This new volume in the Handbook Series is in two parts: Part I, Restriction of Immigration, based upon the question of prohibiting immigration entirely for two years; and Part II, Asiatic Immigration, based not so much on the question of admission of Asiatics as on the treatment to be accorded those who have already come to America. Each part contains affirmative and negative briefs, a selected bibliography and reprints of articles covering the history of the question and the arguments for both sides. A general introduction is also included. 370 pages, cloth, $1.80.

FOR 1922-1923 (Vol. 12)

The Great American Biographical Reference Book

Edited by Albert Nelson Marquis

Crisp biographical sketches of nearly 25,000 of the most notable living Americans—men and women—in all parts of the world, including the latest address.

Used in all departments of the Government at Washington.

Schools, Colleges and Universities depend upon this book for biographical facts.

In every well-ordered home it is consulted as frequently as the Dictionary of the English Language.

Is indispensable in every Library. Librarians everywhere say it is the most called for of all biographical reference books.

A NECESSARY REFERENCE BOOK

POPULATION AND ITS DISTRIBUTION

Based on the U. S. Census of 1920

Facts shown here at a glance which can be secured elsewhere only by long and patient work

All towns with a population of 500 and over are listed by states, classified according to size, and arranged alphabetically in these classes. There are tables showing the area of every state, its density of population, percentage of urban and rural population, etc. Among other tables are those giving the number of dealers in various trades in the states and in the larger cities; income and tax returns by states and subscriptions to the Fourth Liberty Loan by states and by cities over 50,000, as a measure of purchasing power; percentages of increase or decrease of population since 1910; and state data showing the number of farms, telephones, miles of railroad, etc.

This book has been found of great value as a reference work both by business men and by students of sociology and economics. For the study of the many problems confronting us today in our economic relationships, as well as for the analyses of markets essential in any business, a knowledge of the facts contained in this book is a basic necessity.

The retail price is $5.00, but to libraries we make a special reduced price of $3.00. We will be glad to send a copy on approval, with the understanding that it may be returned to us within five days if you decide that it does not meet your requirements.
